Central Intelligence Agency
Director of Personnel (DDA/OP)

Dear Sir:

The Information Security Organization is in the process of redesigning the Deputy Director's conference room. The Deputy Director for Information Security has a national leadership role in improving the telecommunications security (COMSEC) and computer security (COMPUSEC) posture of the nation. Thus, he often holds critically important meetings with senior level government and industry executives in his conference room.

The Deputy Director needs to have the official seals of the important departments and agencies of the government in his conference room to underscore the national mission of NSA to all visitors. Since the CIA clearly falls in this category, we would appreciate your provision of an official seal.

I would appreciate your prompt consideration of this matter. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact me directly. I can be reached at (301) 688-6026.

Sincerely,

STAT
